Dept. of Sociology,

and Swaziland,

This is the very first of the Botswana Journal of African Social Studies, and I very much welcome its birth which is long over-due. The journal will become a welcome instrument for the dissemination of knowledge and the results of the research activities of academics in Botswana, elsewhere in the Region, and further afield in the international scene of scholars.

In general, the main focus of the Journal, Pula, will be on Africa, and on Southern Africa in particular. The expectation is that the bulk of the articles will come from the Humanities, the Social and Economic Sciences and Education. Papers from the Natural Sciences will be considered for publication provided that they are not too technical or esoteric for a wider public to appreciate. It is the intention to publish the more technical papers in a series of Occasional Papers of the Institute of Development and Cultural Research of the University College of Botswana.

Any paper whose material is relevant to Education, the social and economic development and academic work in Botswana will be considered for publication.

It will be the objective to publish articles of a high academic and professional standard, well researched and scholarly in quality.

It is hoped that research scholars who have an interest in Southern African Studies, will contribute to this journal and so help it to achieve and maintain an academic and professional standard of which any university can be very proud. Welcome Pula! Long live Pula.
