PUBLICATION GUIDELINES:
We ask contributors to submit two (2) typed copies, following the format (on such issues as references and notes) of articles in this issue of TRANSFORMATION.
Whilst the journal will cater for work at any level of abstraction, or detail, a number of criteria will guide the editors in section of material for inclusion. Articles should aim for academic rigour but also clarify the political implications of the issues discussed. We are concerned not to compete with other South African journals that may cover related ground but in different ways - this will govern our selection principles. All articles will be assessed anonymously by the referees. Contributions should preferably not exceed the following lengths:
Analytical articles: 7 000 words
Debates and review articles: 3 000 words
The views expressed in TRANSFORMATION do not necessarily reflect those of the editors.

HEALTH AND POLICE UNIONISM IN THE EASTERN CAPE; ATTITUDES, PERCEPTIONS AND PROSPECTS

The trade union movement became a powerful factor in South African politics during the resistance era. However, public sector unionism, argues GEOFFREY WOOD, has only come into its own since the political transition and the creation of a democratic government. He looks into the strengths and weaknesses of this focus of organization, taking two sectors in one province as a case study.

SISTERS ON SLIPPERY WHEELS: WOMEN TAXI DRIVERS IN SOUTH AFRICA

MESHACK M. KHOSA considers a previously neglected dimension in the assessment of social change and the transport sector in contemporary South Africa: gender. In-depth interviewing helps us to understand how women experience this sector.

Commentary

AN INTEGRATED RURAL DEVELOPMENT STRATEGY
FOR KWA ZULU NATAL: TOWARDS THE FORMULATION OF AN EFFECTIVE POLICY

Since 1994, the formulation of new strategies for development has become a top priority. Current literature emphasises the regional and the local. ANNE VAUGHAN argues for the effective formulation of locally directed strategies in this critical study.
JONATHAN MICHIE looks at modern British economic history as a classic study in industrial stagnation or decline. He makes explicit a critique of South Africa's current neo-liberal economic policy through an attempted comparison.

RESEARCH, POLICY-MAKING AND THE ADVENT OF DEMOCRACY: A REPLY TO MAX PRICE

Looking at the history and current situation of the Sociology of Work Project at the University of the Witwatersrand, EDDIE WEBSTER considers some different aspects of research organisations and the nature of critical intellectual activity in the changing South African political environment.
