PUBLICATION GUIDELINES:
We ask contributors to submit two (2) typed copies, following the format (on such issues as references and notes) of articles in this issue of TRANSFORMATION. Whilst the journal will cater for work at any level of abstraction, or detail, a number of criteria will guide the editors in selection of material for inclusion. Articles should aim for academic rigour but also clarify the political implications of the issues discussed. We are concerned not to compete with other South African journals that may cover related ground but in different ways – this will govern our selection principles. All articles will be assessed anonymously by the referees. Contributions should preferably not exceed the following lengths:

Analytical articles: 8 000 words
Debates, comment and review articles: 3 000 words

Also see inside back cover ‘Notes for Contributors’.

The views expressed in TRANSFORMATION do not necessarily reflect those of the editors.

Articles
The electoral temptation of race in South Africa: implications for the 2004 election
Gavin Davis discusses why those political parties which campaign electorally in South Africa by invoking implicit or explicit racial appeals are more likely to be successful than those which do not.

Social Capital for Africa
Ben Fine assesses the utility of the term ‘social capital’ — what it is, where it has come from, where it is going and what light, if any, it sheds on an understanding of the African condition.

Community participation — hope and reality
Alan Lipman looks at the attempt to forge appropriate local architectures in post-apartheid South Africa and the efforts to involve local communities in this activity.

Debate
Social Capital and Modernity
ElkeK Zuern discusses Ben Fine’s critique of the current approaches to social capital as outlined in his article in this edition.

Commentary
Dying to fight
Peter Dwyer comments upon the liberation-type politics and activism on display at the Treatment Action Campaign’s (TAC) July 2003 national conference.
