The African e-Journals Project has digitized full text of articles of eleven social science and humanities journals. This item is from the digital archive maintained by Michigan State University Library. Find more at: http://digital.lib.msu.edu/projects/africanjournals/

Available through a partnership with

Scroll down to read the article.
Editorial
Gender and Politics: A Note on Gender Inequality in Lesotho
Francis K Makoa

Assessing Sub-Saharan Africa’s Structural Adjustment Programmes: the Need for More Qualitative Measures
Amon Bar-On

Social Work and Social Development: A Partnership in Social Change
Lena Dominelli

Strategies for Poverty Alleviation in Zimbabwe
Hazel Chinake

Farmer Participation in Research: Implications for Agricultural Development
Erasmus D Monu

Ruth Kiire, Christine Marlow & Edwin Kaseke

Formal Private Sector Housing Finance Institutions and Low-Income Groups in Zimbabwe
Amin Y Kamete

Review Articles
Book Reviews

Volume 12 No 1 1997
The Journal publishes critical analyses of social development issues as they affect the poor and marginalised in society. It deals with concerns, especially, but not exclusively, relevant to southern Africa, and is addressed to development practitioners, social workers, planners, policy makers and academics in a variety of fields such as economics, geography, politics, sociology, psychology, social administration, and to other concerned individuals.

Published twice annually, the Journal seeks to enhance understanding of the social development processes that contribute to the planning and implementation of appropriate intervention strategies at different levels. Its goal is to discover how best to target relevant and successful projects to those most in need, and how to maximise popular participation, thereby creating egalitarian and productive communities.

Editor
Nigel Hall

Editorial Board
Dr Edwin Kaseke (Chairperson), Principal, School of Social Work, Harare.
Mr Rodreck Mupedziswa, Deputy Principal, School of Social Work, Harare.
Mrs Perpetua Gumiswa, Lecturer, School of Social Work, Harare.
Mr Josphat M Mathe, Redd Barna, Harare.

Editorial Advisors
Dr Lionel Louw, Senior Lecturer, School of Social Work, University of Cape Town, South Africa.
Prof John F Jones, Dean, Graduate School of Social Work, University of Denver, USA.
Prof James Midgley, Professor of Social Work & Associate Vice Chancellor for Research, Louisiana State University, USA.
Prof Kwaku Osei-Hwedie, Dean, Dept. of Social Work, University of Botswana, Botswana.
Dr Paul Kishindo, Senior Lecturer, Dept. of Sociology, Chancellor College, University of Malawi, Malawi.
Dr Nana Araba Apt, Coordinator, Social Work Programme, Dept. of Sociology, University of Ghana, Ghana.
Prof Gary Craig, University of Humberside, UK, & Editor, Community Development Journal.

Subscriptions per annum*
Third World US$30 Rest of World US$40
Zimbabwe Individuals: Z$30; Institutions: Z$40
* Please indicate starting issue or year for subscriptions.
Back issues available on request.
Agents discount 20%.
Airmail surcharge US$8 per annum.
Advertising rates on request, exchange advertising by arrangement.
Notes for Contributors:
All correspondence should be addressed to:
   The Editor
   Journal of Social Development in Africa
   School of Social Work
   P Bag 66022
   Kopje, Harare
   Zimbabwe.

Format for Submissions:
Contributions that further the aims of the Journal are welcomed, and will be refereed. Manuscripts should be typed single-sided on A4 paper, double-spaced. Two copies of the article should be submitted and the author’s name, affiliation and address should be attached to the cover, to facilitate anonymity in the refereeing of the article. One copy should be of good quality print, preferably laser-printed, although this is not essential. The article can also be sent on computer disc, in WP51, MSWord or Mac format.

Articles in general should be of 8-9,000 words in length. However longer as well as shorter articles will be published if justified by the content of the contribution. The article should begin with an abstract of approximately 150 - 200 words.

Within the body of the text references to authors is made by author, date and page number in the following way:

Makola (1982:67) indicates that: "...social development is necessary in the context of the developing world," agreeing with the view of Nkosana (1981).

Page references are normally provided where a direct quote is given.

Bibliographical references follow the body of the text and should be listed alphabetically and chronologically by author and date: in the case of books, by title, publisher and place of publication; in the case of articles by full journal name, volume, and first plus last page numbers; in the case of chapters, by title, collection title, editor, publisher and place of publication. Examples follow:

References:

Authors receive five complimentary offprints of their article and the relevant Journal issue. Book reviewers will receive one complimentary copy of the Journal in which the review appears. Submission of an article implies that it has not been published already nor is it being considered for publication elsewhere. Copyright of all the contents of the Journal is assigned to the School of Social Work, Harare. Permission to reprint original articles should be sought from the Editor of the Journal at the above address.
Editorial

Articles
Gender and Politics: A Note on Gender Inequality in Lesotho
Francis K. Makoa 5

Assessing Sub-Saharan Africa’s Structural Adjustment Programmes: the Need for More Qualitative Measures
Aron Bar-On 15

Social Work and Social Development:
A Partnership in Social Change
Lena Dominelli 29

Strategies for Poverty Alleviation in Zimbabwe
Hazel Chinake 39

Farmer Participation in Research: Implications for Agricultural Development
Erasmus D Monu 53

Ruth Kiire, Christine Marlow & Edwin Kaseke 67

Formal Private Sector Housing Finance Institutions and Low-Income Groups in Zimbabwe: Peculiar Requirements, Operations and Realities
Amin Y Kamete 83

Review Articles

Book Reviews

List of Books Received

Abstracting Services and Index
Discover the wide world of Islamic literature

The journal is produced to a very high standard, and should be a very useful source for all libraries and information users concerned with Islamic issues. Information Development (London), Volume 7, Number 4, pages 241-242

This journal is doing a singular service to the cause of the publicity of periodical literature on Islamic culture and civilization in all its diverse aspects. Every scholar of Islamic Studies should feel indebted to you for this service.

PROFESSOR S.M. RAZAULLAH ANSARI
President, International Union of History and Philosophy of Science (IUHPS) Commission for Science and Technology in Islamic Civilization, New Delhi, India

(Periodica Islamica is an invaluable guide...)

PROFESSOR BILL KATZ
Library Journal (New York), Volume 118, Number 21, page 184

Periodica Islamica is a most valuable addition to our reference collection.

PROFESSOR WOLFGANG BEHN
Union Catalogue of Islamic Publications, Staatsbibliothek Preussischer Kulturbesitz Berlin, Germany

It is recommended for all research libraries and scholars of the Islamic viewpoint.

DR. RICHARD R. CENTING
Multicultural Review (Westport, Connecticut), Volume 2, Number 1, page 40

You should be congratulated on Periodica Islamica which should prove to be a valuable journal to persons interested in Islam and the entire Muslim World.

AMBASSADOR (RTD.) CHRISTOPHER VAN HOLLEN
The Middle East Institute, Washington DC, USA

Periodica Islamica is an international contents journal. In its quarterly issues it reproduces tables of contents from a wide variety of serials, periodicals and other recurring publications worldwide. These primary publications are selected for indexing by Periodica Islamica on the basis of their significance for religious, cultural, socioeconomic and political affairs of the Muslim world.

Periodica Islamica is the premiere source of reference for all multi-disciplinary discourses on the world of Islam. Browsing through an issue of Periodica Islamica is like visiting your library 100 times over. Four times a year, in a highly compact format, it delivers indispensable information on a broad spectrum of disciplines explicitly or implicitly related to Islamic issues.

If you want to know the Muslim world better, you need to know Periodica Islamica better.

Subscription Order Form

Annual Subscription Rates

- Individual US$40.00
- Institution US$249.00

Name

Address

City, State, Code

Country

Bank draft

MONEY ORDER

Expiry date

Signature

To place your order immediately telephone (+60-3) 282-5286

To fax your order complete this order form and send to (+60-3) 282-8489

Mail this completed order form to Periodica Islamica

SUBSCRIBERS IN MALAYSIA MAY PAY AN EQUIVALENT AMOUNT IN RINGGIT (RM) AT THE PREVAILING EXCHANGE RATE

Editorial

The article by Makoa from Lesotho examines the causes and consequences of gender inequality. Makoa argues persuasively that this inequality is so deeply rooted within the country that only a determined, committed political campaign can counter its negative effects. Gender inequality is based partly on traditional customs and mores, together with a host of other factors outlined by Makoa, including political factors. Colonial policies and practices reinforced and strengthened this inequality which remained after independence, serving entrenched (male) interests in society. However, the author points out that attitudes should change and indeed can shift in the direction of equality if political will is there: all societies are dynamic and there is no reason why gender-biased attitudes which relegate women to a subordinate position should not change.

Bar-On, writing from Botswana, examines an interesting area – how to assess the success or otherwise of Africa’s structural adjustment programmes. As the author points out convincingly, questions relating to this assessment depend very heavily on the values and political/ideological view of the questioner. Bar-On examines the perspective of the New Right and the Liberal, each of which has its own value system which do not necessarily accord with the objective of egalitarian income distribution, which is often seen as a hoped for consequence of economic reform programmes. The author proposes the use of more sensitive and relevant indicators which take into account the value system concerned and which provide a more realistic idea of the “success” of the programmes concerned.

Dominelli presents a hard-hitting article, outlining the concept of social development and then starkly presenting the opposite scenario to us – that of gross underdevelopment and exploitation in the Third World, brought about to a major extent by globalisation and the imposition of structural adjustment policies. In writing from a First World context (ie, from the UK), she presents the case of Britain as a country where the social fabric has been devastated by monetarist reform measures, suggesting that there is little difference in the social effects of structural adjustment between different parts of the world. She makes a strong plea for social workers to take on “liberationist” as opposed to “maintenance” roles, to take a stand against underdevelopment and develop a sense of social justice and commitment. Dominelli’s contribution served as a keynote to a Conference on Social Development held at the School of Social Work in 1995.

For the first time the School of Social Work has printed a paper written by a student. Chinake’s paper – which received a prize at the 1995 Graduation Ceremony – is concerned with developing strategies for poverty alleviation in Zimbabwe. The paper attempts an understanding of the concept of poverty, placing
Editorial

Attempts at poverty alleviation on the part of the government and others are outlined, leading to various proposed strategies. Chinake calls for a variety of measures, which, if taken together, would avoid "piecemeal engineering of inadequate social policies." The crucial role that social workers can play in this process is also outlined.

Monu's article specifically addresses one particular sector with regard to its development needs - the agricultural sector. The author emphasises that if genuine social development is to occur, the farmer needs to be involved, not as a passive partner, but as an active participant. Monu examines three major models of agricultural research which basically provide contrasting approaches to the farmer - one basically top-down, disseminating results to farmers; the other two much more participative and involving of farmers. He outlines the value of farmer participation and demonstrates how the integration of farmers' perspectives can improve agricultural development. The article is interesting for its applied focus: often we accept social development values as truisms, but with this article the practical efficacy of adopting a participative approach can be seen.

Kiire, Marlow and Kaseke provide a useful insight into the employment experiences of graduates from the School of Social Work in Harare. This is a follow-up to a previous report on former Diploma students, produced in 1983, although now expands to include those with Degrees. As with the former study the majority of former students are now working in government service, although many are dissatisfied by the poor salaries and conditions of service in that sector. With the impact of structural adjustment with its attendant retrenchments and freezing of vacant positions, job security is very important and many students are now augmenting their social work training with additional post-qualifying courses, in an attempt to remain competitive in the job market. The School is also making attempts to meet these needs by developing new courses and changes in curriculum.

Kamete provides a critical insight into the operations of private sector housing finance institutions and their lending performance to low-income groups in Zimbabwe. Housing is an urgent necessity in most developing countries, not least Zimbabwe; however access to finance becomes more and more difficult for both low- and middle-income sectors. Kamete examines the attitude of formal finance institutions particularly towards the low-income groups which has generally been one of disinterest, due to the obvious financial risks involved. Although Kamete views this reluctance as understandable, he criticises them for a lack of enterprise. Some improvements are noted, but these have more to do with more conducive changes in the lending environment rather than a change of attitude on the part of the financiers.