PUBLICATION GUIDELINES:
We ask contributors to submit two (2) typed copies, following the format (on such issues as references and notes) of articles in this issue of TRANSFORMATION. Whilst the journal will cater for work at any level of abstraction, or detail, a number of criteria will guide the editors in selection of material for inclusion. Articles should aim for academic rigour but also clarify the political implications of the issues discussed. We are concerned not to compete with other South African journals that may related ground but in different ways – this will govern our selection principles. All contributions will be assessed anonymously by referees. Contributions should preferably not exceed the following lengths:

Analytical articles: 7 000 words
Debates and review articles: 3 000 words

The views expressed in TRANSFORMATION do not necessarily reflect those of the editors.

EDITORIAL AND CONTRIBUTIONS ADDRESS:

AROUND WHICH CORNER?: REVOLUTIONARY THEORY AND CONTEMPORARY SOUTH AFRICA

In a major reconsideration of contemporary South African politics, COLIN BUNDY looks back at political debates on the Left of the pre-Sharpeville period. He considers critically the revolutionary strategies that have developed since by examining South Africa in the light of revolutionary theory more generally.

SECURITY MANAGEMENT UPGRADING IN THE BLACK TOWNSHIPS

Unlike the conventional wisdom that state incorporationist strategies are irrelevant, ANDREW BORaine's in-depth study of Mamelodi examines the implications of a shift in state urban strategy.

THE SOUTH AFRICAN STATE AND THE OUKASIE REMOVAL

While post-1986 township upgrading, restructuring and class formation is going on apace in some localities, ALAN MORRIS argues that an examination of Oukasie near the centre of Brits in the Transvaal reveals the stubbornness of pre-'Reform' removal policy in one locale.
DEBATE

TRANFORMING TEACHERS: A RESPONSE TO MORRELL'S "EDUCATION STRUGGLES" 64

MELANIE WALKER responds to a recent contribution on class and politics amongst African teachers by Rob Morrell by looking at militant activity on the part of teachers, particularly in the Western Cape.

SACOS: TOWARDS PLAYER CONTROL 70

YUNUS CARRIM responds to a discussion of SACOS policy that appeared in Transformation 6.

REVIEW ARTICLES

The possibilities and limitations for socialism in Zimbabwe are considered in the light of a recent study by Zimbabwean academics, reviewed by JOHN SAXBY. 75

BILL FREUND looks at the critical analysis which a number of recent articles are making of the Mozambican revolution. 85
