PUBLICATION GUIDELINES:
We ask contributors to submit two (2) typed copies, following the format (on such issues as references and notes) of articles in this issue of TRANSFORMATION. Whilst the journal will cater for work at any level of abstraction, or detail, a number of criteria will guide the editors in selection of material for inclusion. Articles should aim for academic rigour but also clarify the political implications of the issues discussed. We are concerned not to compete with other South African journals that may cover related ground but in different ways - this will govern our selection principles. All articles will be assessed anonymously by the referees. Contributions should preferably not exceed the following lengths:
Analytical articles: 7 000 words
Debates and review articles: 3 000 words

The views expressed in TRANSFORMATION do not necessarily reflect those of the editors.

VIGILANTES, CLIENTELISM AND THE SOUTH AFRICAN STATE

CRAIG CHARNEY comes to grips with the persistent horrific violence in South Africa in an assessment that concentrates on the persistence of a colonial patronage system - clientelism - which he illuminates through reference to an important theme in debates about third world politics.

THE CHARACTER AND CONSEQUENCES OF CONGLOMERATION IN THE SOUTH AFRICAN ECONOMY

Most of the public discussion in South Africa concerning economic power has focused on the question of nationalisation. DAVID LEWIS argues that the real issue revolves around the power and developmental consequence of the power of conglomerates - the dominance of finance over production and how to change it.

A GROWTH PATH FOR A POST-APARTHEID SOUTH AFRICA

Commenting on ANC economic discussion documents, RAPHAEL KAPLINSKY clarifies the current debates about economic growth paths and, in opting for a policy of "growth through redistribution" outlines some of the consequences.
MARXISM IN SOUTH AFRICA: CONTEXT, THEMES AND CHALLENGES

Is Marxism dead? COLIN BUNDY considers some of the challenges that face socialists in constructing an appropriate and effective movement in an international atmosphere of crisis for Marxism.
