PUBLICATION GUIDELINES:
We ask contributors to submit two (2) typed copies, following the format (on such issues as references and notes) of articles in this issue of TRANSFORMATION. Whilst the journal will cater for work at any level of abstraction, or detail, a number of criteria will guide the editors in selection of material for inclusion. Articles should aim for academic rigour but also clarify the political implications of the issues discussed. We are concerned not to compete with other South African journals that may cover related ground but in different ways – this will govern our selection principles. All articles will be assessed anonymously by the referees. Contributions should preferably not exceed the following lengths:

Analytical articles: 8 000 words
Debates, comment and review articles: 3 000 words

The views expressed in TRANSFORMATION do not necessarily reflect those of the editors.

Articles

Adversarial Participation and Antagonistic Cooperation?: workplace forums, employee participation and lean production

Gilton Klerck critically discusses adversarialism and participation in workplace relations around proposed workplace forums, arguing that at best there will be "an uneasy coexistence" of the two elements.

Borders of Dissent in South Africa: the Bushbuckridge saga

Border disputes did not end with apartheid. Sagie Narsiah and Brij Maharaj examine the saga around the Bushbuckridge region, and the central state's role in local-level politics and mobilisation.

A Critical Investigation into the Impact of Community Art

Sabine Marschall examines mural art, and discusses the various types of such painting. She questions, drawing on interviews, why it should have different impact in different situations.

The Impact of Local Government on Rural Development in South Africa

The important place of local government in a democratic order is discussed by Mary Galvin.
